LAST PERIOD SCORE ENABLES BENSELEM TO TIE PEMBERTON

Owls Barely Slide Through To Thrilling 6-6 Tie

Visitors Proved To Be Grossly
Underrated Eleven and Put Up A Good Fight

(By JACK GILL)

George Reimer, Bensalem's head coach, with a painful broken jaw, doesn't know what's going to happen next. For him, this certainly has been a dizzy, topsy-turvy football season. He lived a lifetime beating Bristol, sagged a little in an upset 13-13 tie with Newtown and came back to life last week when his squad levelled Lower Moreland, 26 to 0.

Yesterday afternoon he squirmed on the bench once again as his team barely slid through to a thrilling 6-6 tie with a grossly underrated Pemberton eleven.

A scoreless fray was in progress until late in the third quarter. At this point Joe Waldron shot a pass from his own 15-yard line intended for Dick Colbert. The ball deflected off the Owl end and Jim Ingling made a picture one hand stab to nab the ball and speed across unscathed. The vital try for extra point failed.

Bensalem came back fighting to even matters up in a spirited last ditch stand. George Carter, who this year is giving Lower Bucks grid patrons an exhibition of proper line backing up, eased through to block a punt. The ball bounded backwards to the twenty-three.

Then steady Hank Killian let a pass fly from the 23-yard line that Dick Colbert caught uninterrupted in the end zone for the Owl's six pointer. With things evened up at 6-6, Waldron tried a plunge at a weary Pemberton line that braced and withstood the charge.

Germans Say Luxury Liner Has Been Sunk

Berlin, Oct. 26.—(INS)—The luxury liner Empress of Britain has been bombed and sunk off the northern coast of Ireland, it was announced officially in Berlin today.

The announcement said the 42,348-ton Canadian Pacific liner went down this morning after being sighted by German bombing planes within the German blockade zone.

Search For Grave of Girl Believed Dead

Quakertown, Oct. 26.—Bucks County authorities today resumed search for a grave believed to contain the body of Mary Letsak, 20-year-old Phillipsburg, N. J., girl who disappeared a fortnight ago in the company of a youth later found dead.

Detectives and State Police hunted in the vicinity of lonely Haycock Mountain where the body of Andrew Koten, 25, was discovered Thursday. Relatives hinted Koten may have killed the girl in a jealous rage and buried her body before shooting himself to death.

Alienists To Examine Langhorne Man

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—Judge George A. Welsh has instructed Assistant U. S. Attorney, Edward A. Kallick, to hire three alienists to examine Lincoln Arthur Samuel de Cleyre, 24-year-old owner of a filling station at Langhorne. DeCleyre is accused of uttering threats against the life of President Roosevelt.

De Cleyre passed an oral examination with flying colors during the court room procedure.

King George Sends Message To Petain

London, Oct. 26.—In a last-minute effort to prevent France from turning against Great Britain and joining the Axis, King George VI today sent a special message to Marshal Petain, assuring him that Britain ultimately will win the war and France will share in the benefits of that victory.

On October 29th

SCHOOL BANDS TO PLAY

MORRISVILLE, Oct. 26.—A patriotic rally is planned for Tuesday evening in the high school auditorium under the auspices of Willet C. Sanford Post, No. 433, American Legion.

The program is under the supervision of Mandoah R. Reiter and Harry Lair, of the Americanization committee of the post, and all civic organizations and public are invited. The purpose is to acquaint the public with the legionnaires' views on the present war situation and present a picture of just what is taking place today in international affairs.

Frank Wynne, of Allentown, past state commander of the American Legion, will speak. The Legion Bugle and Drum Corps will march in a street drill through the borough just before the meeting gets under way at 8.30. Also to be featured at the meeting will be the Falls Township and Morrisville High School bands.

The newly-elected commander, Leo Smith, today announced his committees as follows: Membership, Edward Mountford, Albert Bond, Caleb Cope, Benjamin White, Cheston Hutchinson, Harry Wilcox and Fred Duke; publicity and district, Caleb Cope; grave decorating, John Gear, Edward Mountford and Michael Kish; home and grounds, George Kelly; drum and bugle corps, J. Roissier; liaison officer, John Gear; service officers, Harry Lair and Harry Wilcox; emergency, Albert Bond, Harry Wilcox and Walter Wardell; junior baseball, William H. Howell, John Gear and Edward Ryan; sergeant for firing squad, Walter Wardell; Americanism, Mandoah R. Reiter; dug-out, John Gear, Benjamin Johnson and Russell Nutt; fund raising, Herbert LaRue, J. AGED HULMEVILLE MAN SERIOUSLY HURT IN CRASH

John Pastella, 74, in Nazareth Hospital, With Six Broken Ribs

DAUGHTER ALSO HURT

An aged Hulmeville man was seriously injured yesterday afternoon when the car in which he was riding and another car collided on the Lincoln Highway at South Langhorne.

The injured: John Pastella, 74, in Nazareth Hospital with six broken ribs, fractured right clavicle, and other minor injuries.

The injured man was riding in a car operated by his daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Scarlett, also of Hulmeville. Mrs. Scarlett suffered from shock and minor cuts and bruises.

According to Private Christman, Penna. Motor Police, Langhorne Barracks, who investigated the accident, a coupe driven by Leonard Place, Millbrook, N. Y., was travelling east on the Lincoln Highway, when the car driven by Mrs. Scarlett crossed the highway at Durham Road.

The Scarlett car was struck with such force, it is reported, that it was driven across the highway against an iron traffic light standard. There was a large dent in the side of the Scarlett car, due to its impact with the light standard.

Place sustained cuts and bruises about the right knee. He and Mrs. Scarlett were treated in the office of Dr. Marker, South Langhorne.

Given Dinner Party On 80th Anniversary

CROYDON, Oct. 26.—Mrs. Joseph Ruck, of State Road and Wyoming avenue, was given a dinner party in her honor by her daughter, Marie, on Thursday. She received numerous useful gifts. The invited guests included: Mrs. Otto Zester, Mrs. George Keyes, Miss Dorothy Keyes, Mrs. Phillip Marlin, of Croydon, and Mrs. Charles H. Plageman, Sr., of Pleasantville, N. J., another daughter of Mrs. Ruck.

The dinner table and room was in keeping with the Halloween season. Favors were hand-painted butterflies and Halloween candy baskets were given each participant. A prize of a box of handkerchiefs was given for guessing correctly in the bean contest. It was won by Mrs. Phillip Marlin.

Later in the afternoon ice cream, cake and candy were served. A very sociable time was enjoyed by all. Mrs. Ruck's sister, Mrs. A. Belfield, and son, of Tacony, paid an unexpected surprise visit to congratulate her on this unusual occasion.

On Friday, October 25th, Mrs. Thomas Glenn, Sr., of Pleasantville, N. J., made a social call also to wish her a happy birthday on her 80th year.

Mrs. Ruck is a resident of long standing in this community.

FEDERATED WOMEN'S CLUBS MEET IN PERKASIE

Mrs. John D. Gill Gives An Interesting and Instructive
Talk On World Affairs

R. H. GRIM ALSO SPEAKS

PERKASIE, Oct. 26.—The address of Mrs. John D. Gill, Bala Cynwyd, State Chairman of Department of International Relations of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, gave a highly interesting address yesterday at the fall meeting of the Bucks County Federation of Women's Clubs here. The morning and afternoon sessions were held at St. Stephen's Reformed Church and were attended by several hundred women.

Another speaker on the program was Robert H. Grim, Esq., Perkasia attorney, who discussed the legal aspects of marriage.

The talk of Mrs. Gill aroused her audience to hearty applause. She discussed the attitude the United States should take in world affairs, today.

Having visited Europe and the West Indies recently, Mrs. Gill had much to say about the attitude other nations take toward America. Said she:

"We are going to protect Canada, Alaska and all other bordering countries that are our outposts. There is a great deal of anti-American sentiment being heard today. We also will protect Cuba, but we may also lose out economically in doing so, because of the methods the dictatorships will use."

Mrs. Gill believes that the West Indies have a very meagre defense, but she also expressed the belief that the United States will not be attacked by a military invasion by sea for at least six years, "until Germany and Italy can organize their forces." She urged that all the nations of the world must soon learn to co-operate in a better fashion than they did after the last world war. She blamed the United States as much as any country for making the present war possible, for having caused an unequal opportunity for the distribution of raw materials.

Robert H. Grim, Esq., gave instructive facts on marriage laws as he described the legal aspects of modern married life. He told how common law marriage still is recognized by the courts, although it is not encouraged as much as it had been before licenses were required, after 1885. "A fine can be imposed for living in a married state without going through the legal procedure," he said.

"An even more strict requirement than the present test of blood should be required before marriage," said Attorney Grim, "than the one needed 30 days before a wedding." He said that within 30 days after the test is taken either of the two parties might contract syphilis without having detected it. The lawyer explained that the law requiring a three-day delay before a couple weds was put on the statute books to give the two parties time to think it over, thus discouraging divorces, which usually are the result of hasty marriage.

SPEAKER HERE CHARGES ROOSEVELT HAS DESIGNS ON A DICTATORSHIP

Major Carmi Hicks, Willkie's Superior Officer, Addresses
Willkie Club Here — Daniel J. McCarthy, A Democrat
Who Will Vote for Willkie, Makes Strong Plea
For Willkie Support

Representatives of both major political parties addressed an audience at the headquarters of Bristol's Willkie-for-President Club, on Mill street, last evening, and both urged the election of Wendell Willkie to the Presidency on November 5th.

One of the speakers, Major Carmi Hicks, Willkie's superior officer when Willkie saw service in the armed forces of the United States, during the World War, declared, "I charge that Franklin Roosevelt is deceiving the American people, that he now has designs on a dictatorship for this country, and has had designs on a dictatorship since he first took office in 1932."

The other speaker, Daniel J. McCarthy, forceful Democratic speaker, and prominent Philadelphia business man, said, "I, like thousands of other Democrats throughout the United States, am going to vote for Wendell Willkie for four reasons, namely: Roosevelt's 'must' legislation of 1933; Roosevelt's attempt to pack the Supreme Court of the United States; Roosevelt's purge of the Congress in 1938; and Roosevelt's sadly mistaken idea that he should perpetuate himself in the office of President."

Major Hicks, now retired, was the founder of the International Lions Club. He was born and reared near the home town of Wendell Willkie, in Indiana. Introduced to the audience by J. Leslie Kilcoyne, Bristol attorney, Kilcoyne declared, "I know of no one who is better fitted to tell you what a man is really like than a man who has served as his superior officer in a war under conditions of stress and strain. And Major Hicks knew Wendell Willkie under such circumstances."

"What we need today more than anything else is another ex-President," Hicks said. "And after November 5th, Hoover will share his distinction with ex-President Roosevelt."

"I speak against Roosevelt not so much for his third term, but mostly because of his first two terms."

"I charge that Roosevelt is deceiving the American people and has been deceiving them ever since he has been in office."

"I charge that he has designs on dictatorship and that he has had designs on a dictatorship since he took office."

"What is a dictatorship? A dictatorship is the receiver for a bankrupt nation and we are well on the road to bankruptcy under Roosevelt."

"Speaking of the 1932 platform, I believe that the Socialist Norman Thomas must have slipped the desk of his party on Roosevelt's platform. But Roosevelt might just as well not have had a platform. He broke practically every promise that he made in that platform of 1932."

Speaking of the Republican candidate's background, Hicks said, "Willkie came from fine stock; his parents were both poor. Both parents studied law and Willkie's mother was the first woman lawyer admitted to the bar in the State of Indiana. Willkie attended high school and then later graduated from Indiana University."

"And the day that war was declared on Germany, Wendell Willkie enlisted in the United States Army as a buck private. Following the end of the war he had an opportunity to come back to a fine young bride whom he married after he joined the army—he did not marry to avoid the call of his country."

"Wendell Willkie was a fine boy, a fine soldier, a fine young man, and is the man for the office of President of the United States."

"After his return from France he became associated in a legal capacity with the Firestone Rubber Company and then later with the Commonwealth and Southern company. Every step was upward and he worked all the way."

"You know the story of the Republican convention in Philadelphia. Wendell Willkie was a nominee in a free election. And just as sure as you were born, Wendell Willkie is going to be your next President."

"And when Wendell Willkie is President he will not be the appeaser to the dictatorships in Europe nor to the Communists in Washington."

Speaking of the legislation which resulted in insurance of bank deposits, Hicks pointed out, "Millions credit Roosevelt with insuring bank accounts, but this is not a fact. Senator Arthur Vandenberg, Republican Senator, fathered this bill and fought for it successfully against the opposition of Roosevelt."

"And speaking of the much talked about issue of changing horses in the middle of the stream, let me ask this question: Who got us into the middle of the stream?"

"It's time we traded. Let's trade off the Mustang for a thoroughbred, Wendell Willkie."

"You know that you change a flat tire. Well, we've been riding on a flat tire long enough."

"If I may say a word about the appointment of Roosevelt's son, Elliott, to a captaincy, I say that this was a very assinine act. When Roosevelt signed the Burke-Wadsworth Conscription Act he emphasized that there must be no partiality shown, but at the time he made that statement he was signing a captain's commission for his son. By so doing, Roosevelt willfully violated Army regulations."

"Both the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars have condemned this act of the president.

"If this administration, by any unforeseen incident is returned to power, we will be at war by December."

"If you want war, vote for Franklin Roosevelt. If you want peace and democracy, vote for Wendell Willkie."

"Never before in the history of this country did any one man attempt to set up a dictatorship until Roosevelt came along. And we'll stop him November 5th."

"Wendell Willkie is the man who will stop him. He is honest, simple and true in action. And above all he is a business man with ability to organize. That's the type of man we are going to send to Washington for the next four years."

McCarthy, a Philadelphia business man, who said he was a life-long Democrat, told the group that "today there is no political campaign. We are fighting to preserve the things that are American. We can only successfully do this by electing Wendell Willkie president of the United States."

"The reason that I am going to vote for Willkie, as are thousands of other Democrats, is that before we are Democrats we are Americans. And it is only as Americans that we can preserve the American Democracy as it has always been in the past."

"We must work in a holy crusade for the ignominious defeat of the New Deal."

"Roosevelt has performed four acts, among hundreds of others that should make every American citizen, Republican or Democrat, vote for his defeat."

"The first was his 'must' legislation of 1933. He told the Congress that regardless of the constitutionality of his measures that they must be passed. Some of them were passed, but Thank God for the Supreme Court who threw out many of them, declaring them unconstitutional."

"The second act that showed Roosevelt's contempt for the American way of doing things was his attempt to pack the Supreme Court. He wanted 15 members instead of the traditional nine. But the American people rose up against this and he was defeated in this plan."

"Then came the historic purge of the Congress. This is the blackest page in the history of the United States. Simply because some representatives did not do as Roosevelt wanted them to do he attempted to have them defeated. But the American people again answered Roosevelt. They sent these men back to Congress again."

"The fourth reason is Roosevelt's idea that he should perpetuate himself in office because he is 'indispensable.' Well, let me tell you people this—there was and there will always be just one man who was indispensable to this country or the world. And that man died on the Cross of Calvary."

William Warren Found Dead at Neisser Residence

William Warren, 80, was found dead this morning by Mrs. John B. Neisser, in the rear yard of the Neisser home, 350 Washington street. Mrs. Neisser went to step out of the back door, at about 7.30, when she was startled to find Mr. Warren, who lived at the Neisser residence, lying upon the sidewalk just outside of the door. It was thought that Mr. Warren had sat down on a small porch to rest and apparently stricken with heart trouble fell over dead.

Mrs. Neisser had just prepared breakfast for the aged man.

Mr. Warren had lived in Bristol for over 50 years, and for the past 18 years made his home at the Neisser residence. For many years he was employed by the Bristol Patent Leather Co., previous to that business being discontinued. The deceased was a native of Philadelphia.

A physician was summoned immediately and pronounced Mr. Warren dead. Deputy coroner, Dr. James Lawler, was called and viewed the body which was removed to the Molden Morgue.

Mr. Warren was a member of Junior Order, United American Mechanics, and

HE'S STILL A CAPTAIN

Capt. Elliott Roosevelt's "resignation" from the procurement (swivel-chair) division of the United States Army Air Corps does not improve the situation so far as this son of the President is concerned.

"The resignation" was turned down, of course. But even if it had been accepted, millions of young Americans now signed up for the draft would have viewed the matter as evidence of political pull and special privilege.

It is unfortunate that this typically Rooseveltian development and bureaucratic slap at "selective service" should have come on the very eve of peacetime conscription. The "I-want-to-be-a-captain-too" buttons now being so widely worn constitute an unmistakable index to the popular reaction.

There are 17,000,000 other young men in the nation today whose actions are a rebuke to this son of a father in high office. Every reader of this editorial knows some of them. Although many of them are better qualified in every way, they did not try to get a soft commission in the Army.

They simply went to the designated point and registered along with their fellow Americans. Elliott should have proceeded in the same manner, as he himself no doubt realizes now that the damage to the family's political fortunes has been done.

It has been a new and revolutionary development in the American Presidency that the nation has witnessed during the last eight years—this stunt of many members of a President's large family cashing in on the prestige of the office to which the people elected him alone.

MORE CURVES IN HOLLYWOOD

Curves are returning to the girls in the films, says a word from Hollywood, which sounds suspiciously like one heard last year and the year before, but this time it is accompanied by an actual statistic. That the typical cutie has put on fifteen pounds in the last five years.

Of course it is all wrong that fashion from whatever source, instead of common sense, should influence the eating habits of millions. If one authority is to have more attention than another, it should be medical and not that of the clothes stylist. Still, there is no use crying out against the nature of people, and it can only be regarded thankfully that the more persuasive authority happens, for the moment, to be right.

No one knows what damage has been done women by a slavish, unintelligent devotion to a fashion that was not meant for her. It must be considerable, and it will continue to be visited on her children. If doctors cannot lead her away from ill-advised monkeying with her diet and her weight, it is something that the immediate fashion happens to be leaning in the direction of their counsel.

"TRIAL WITHOUT JURY"

By JAMES RONALD

SYNOPSIS

Stephen Osborne, at 50, is facing a serious problem indeed when he loses his office job after many years of employment. He has a wife and five children and scant savings. Leaving his city office with leaden feet to walk to his suburban bus, he thinks of his wealthy half-sister, Octavia, who has sternly disapproved his marriage ever since it took place, twenty-four years ago. It would be hard—very hard—to appeal to her for help. . . . Arriving home, he decides to tell his wife, Edith, he had news that night. The next morning, a telegram is received from Aunt Octavia, announcing she would arrive that noon. Hannah Gale, the Osborne's servant, has just sent the messenger boy a-flying!

CHAPTER FOUR

Her muscular arms akimbo, Hannah stooped to inspect the drawing. The boy had sketched a rugged, mannish profile which could only be identified as that of a woman by the bun of hair at the back of the head. . . . Hannah realized grimly that it was not at all a bad caricature of herself. Even as a girl she had never cherished any illusions about her own exceeding plainness.

A household may be judged by the woman in the kitchen, Hannah was a domestic servant of a type which is almost extinct. Gold cannot buy them. Only a family that appreciates them can keep them.

The family Hannah had served for twenty-four years was her whole existence. Work was her pride, cleanliness her god. A large woman in the forties, there was no superfluous flesh on her bony, muscular frame; she had always been too hard a worker for that. No matter what the hour or how messy her occupation, her apron was always clean. She would rather have washed a dish in a week than worn a soiled one.

The appetizing odour which pervaded the house reminded her that she had left bacon frying on the gas-stove. She closed the front door and went into the kitchen, turning, with hand outstretched, to a table beneath the window. She frowned. Odd! She could have sworn she had placed some eggs, an egg-beater, and her favourite bowl on the table. The eggs were still there, and the beater, but not the bowl.

And then she remembered that Michael had come into the kitchen by the back door at the moment when she went to answer the front door bell. Master Michael had a habit of borrowing first and asking permission afterwards. With a belated look in her eyes she went to see what he was up to with her best bowl.

Michael was in the lean-to at the side of the house in which he kept his ramshackle yellow roadster. A slim youth of seventeen with dark, curly hair, large dark eyes and a thin, eager-looking face; clad in motley grey slacks and a much-used sweater, he was squatting on the concrete floor, surrounded by parts from the recalcitrant engine. Hannah's cherished bowl was filled with a black, oily liquid that smelt of kerosene and he was washing the parts in it and drying them on a grimy cloth.

Hannah uttered an outraged short and the youth looked up, brushing a lock of hair from his eyes.

"Hello, Hannah. Come to give me a hand?"

"If I do, you young ruffian, it'll be round your ears. After you broke that pudding-dish the other day, didn't I tell you to keep out of my kitchen?"

"Can't a fellow borrow one of your bowls for five minutes when he has a job to do?"

"And how am I to beat eggs for an omelette?"

"Scramble 'em!" Hannah looked down at his curved back. The Osborne children were all as dear to her as though they were her own, but Michael was the apple of her eye. When he was born his mother had been in danger of dying and the doctor had despaired of the child as well. While doctor and nurse strove to save the mother, Hannah had tried an old-fashioned remedy on the baby. She had evoked from him his first puny cries at the moment when Edith Osborne task without supervision. A dreamer, she spent most of her time in a world of her own, a world peopled with characters of her own creation, in which she herself was the most important character of all.

At the moment, Marjory was a great lady. She was walking in the garden of a country mansion with a lovesick suitor whom she liked and respected but could never love. It was her duty to make him understand that she could never be more to him than a very dear friend (which was his cue to kiss her hand, mutter something in a broken voice, and stumble with bowed head from her presence, to hide his sorrow in opened her eyes again to life. And, having snatched him from death, Hannah loved Michael as dearly as though she had borne him.

With a sigh she turned to go back to the kitchen, leaving him in possession of the bowl, but out of the corner of her eye she identified the oily cloth with which he was drying his nuts and bolts.

"One of my good dish-cloths!" She whipped it out of his hand, snatched up the bowl and poured the contents out on the ground and marched back to the kitchen with her head in the air.

Through the window she saw Marjory wandering in the garden with a basket on her arm. Marjory was fourteen, straight and slender as a boy, with a boy's natural grace of carriage. Like Michael, she had dark, curling hair and dark eyes. She was wearing a red jersey and an incredible length of leg. No matter how often her clothes were lengthened, she always had too much leg. Theoretically she was gathering raspberries for breakfast but Hannah was prepared to bet that the basket was empty. Marjory could not be trusted to perform the simplest

Mr. Elwood Stackhouse Weds
Miss Mary E. McClafferty

The Rev. Father Paul Baird united in marriage this morning at 10 o'clock, Miss Mary E. McClafferty, 307 Buckley street, and Mr. Elwood Stackhouse, of 665 New Buckley street. The wedding occurred in St. Mark's rectory, with Mrs. Alvin Wilkins, 307 Buckley street, serving her sister as bridesmaid; and Mr. William Shields, Bath street, attending Mr. Stackhouse as best man.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. McClafferty, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stackhouse.

The former Miss McClafferty wore as her bridal costume today, a street-length dress of royal blue velvet, it having a high, round neckline, short sleeves and flare skirt. With this she wore an off-the-face hat of royal blue velvet, white kid gloves, black slippers, and a corsage of flowers.

Mrs. Wilkins, the bridesmaid, was attired in a dress made like that worn by the bride, but in duobonnet velvet, with hat to match. Her slippers were of duobonnet, gloves of white kid, and she also wore a corsage of fall flowers.

Members of the immediate families attended a reception at the home of the bride's parents immediately after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Stackhouse will participate in a week-end trip to New York. For the journey Mrs. Stackhouse will wear a gray suit, duobonnet felt hat, and duobonnet accessories. They will reside in an apartment at Penn and Cedar streets.

ON THE SCREENS

BRISTOL THEATRE

Gene Autry, whose fans have elevated him to the status of a national hero, lives up to all expectations in his current Republic film, "Carolina Moon," which opened last evening at the Bristol Theatre. Aided and abetted by Smiley Burnette, his genial comedy sidekick, and the engaging Miss June Storey, his leading lady—he turns in one of his most entertaining performances to date, one which should serve to cement the legion of his admirers and win him many more.

The "East Side Kids" come through again in a rollicking action-packed thriller, "Boys of the City," which opened yesterday at the Bristol Theatre, with Bobby Jordan, Leo Gorcey, Dave O'Brien and George Humbert in the leading roles.

A hand-picked group of roughnecks, the "East Side Kids" are led by two members of the original "Dead End Kids," Leo Gorcey and Bobby Jordan. While being transported to the country to escape a court sentence for malicious mischief, they pick up Judge Parker and his ward, Louise, when their car is blown up by a time bomb planted by the Mori gang in an attempt to snuff out the Judge's life. Due to a breakdown, the kids are forced to spend the night at Parker's gloomy chateau.

GRAND THEATRE

Patrons of the Grand Theatre can look forward to thrilling, action-packed entertainment when "Pier 13," new 20th Century-Fox film opens there today. Previewers already have established the picture as sure-fire screen fare.

With New York's exciting waterfront as the background, "Pier 13" is played by a particularly fine cast which includes: lovely Lynn Bari, Lloyd Nolan, Joan Valerie and Douglas Fowley. Although it is a heart-pounding story of right against wrong, "Pier 13" is said to be packed with mirthful comedy.

When Jesse James, six-guns blazing, rode triumphantly across the nation's screens in the person of Tyrone Power, it was a foregone conclusion that the James legend wouldn't end with just one picture. For one thing, "Jesse James" proved that popular demand for fast-action pictures was greater than ever. For another, the cast of the picture turned in such outstanding performances in their various roles that everybody wanted to see them again. Consequently, it's pleasant to learn that most of the favorites of "Jesse James" are back in action in "The Return of Frank James," the new Technicolor film which opens Sunday at the Grand Theatre.

First and foremost of these, Frank James had to be Henry Fonda. Fonda placed his individual stamp on the role of the quiet, grim older brother of "Jesse James," and no other actor could ever be conceived in the role.

Of the many other unforgettable characters, most of them are back again, too. Chief among these is John Carradine, once again as the villainous Bob Ford.

RITZ THEATRE

Joan Bennett, Francis Lederer, Lloyd Nolan and Anna Sten have the starring roles in the new 20th Century-Fox film, "The Man I Married," coming to the Ritz Theatre, on Sunday. Advance reports herald the picture as surprising dramatic entertainment.

TWO MORRISVILLE BOYS IN PERSONAL DUEL AS PENN STATE MEETS TEMPLE IN STADIUM TODAY

Backs Who Once Cavorted On Locals Fields Will Oppose Each Other In Morrisville's Battle of Century; VanLenten, Bristol Boy, May Also See Duty

CARAVAN OF LOCAL FANS TO WITNESS CONTEST

(By JACK GILL)

A stranger passing through Morrisville today along about two o'clock in the afternoon would glimpse a miniature version of one of those "Klondike" ghost towns of which the West is so famous. It's almost a legal holiday in the old Borough. Two of its favorite sons will be pitted against each other down at Temple Stadium.

For today Jimmy Yeager, one of the greatest all-round backs the Lower Bucks Conference has ever had, and Craig White, a veteran of four years' standing in college ball, will be playing for Temple and Penn State, respectively.

Both boys are backfield men and both hail from Morrisville. White was a star of another era, some five years ago, on a Bulldog team of only average strength. He prepped a year at Bordentown Military Academy and then started playing Frosh ball at State. Used extensively as a blocking back by Coach Bob Higgins, the rugged White is one of the better defensive players in the East.

Yeager is one of Coach Ray Morrison's key men. Breaking in as a sophomore on a team loaded down with spicy material, the big blond boy fits in well as a running fullback.

And all Morrisville is talking it up, as game time approaches. For this is their day and all eyes will be focused on the personal duel between the two boys. They're not picking favorites in this battle of "favorite sons," but the back that whizzes by the most will be accorded the hand.

The tussle attracted so much attention in Morrisville that the high school game with Conshohocken was rescheduled from this afternoon to last evening. As a result, they fought Robert Morris gridiron up with a set of portables and got the game out of the way. Today they'll all trek down to see two of their former high school stars in action.

Bristol takes a nod in this game that is taking on a homecoming day aspect. A surprise entry on one of State's end posts may be rangy Wilbur VanLenten, a Bristol boy of two years back VanLenten, who hails from Edgely, was an all-conference player here under the guidance of Steve Juenger. During his final season he was switched to a tackle post and he was good enough to be chosen on the all-conference eleven.

So we've got three former conference gridlers parading before our eyes in faster company today.

Perhaps one of the happiest men in schoolboy football ranks this day will be Morrisville's head coach, clever Johnny Hoffman. The thrill that comes once in a lifetime to a small town high school mentor will be his. Well known throughout the district for his strong teams and known in Bulldogville as "Long John," the local conference leader will be thinking of the days when both White and Yeager, reported to him as raw hands, Hoffman worked with both boys for four years, knows their habits, attitude and traits.

And if you were sitting next to him, he might be able to call a few twists that the game will take when either White or Yeager carry the ball.

The game has somewhat dulled the local picture and no ball games are on top. White will be seeing action for the first time in two weeks since he injured a shoulder. Higgins will give him the "go" sign today, however. Yeager is in tip-top shape and last week scored his first varsity touchdown against Michigan State on a five-yard jaunt off tackle.

VanLenten, a substitute end, has seen action in most of State's games this year and will undoubtedly get in this one. So if you hear another group whooping it up over on the far side of the field, it's just Bristol counteracting the Morrisville hysterics.

ST. FRANCIS ELEVEN TO PLAY AT MERCHANTVILLE

EDDINGTON, Oct. 26—"Small, fast, but plenty tough," seems to sum up Coach Harry Behn's St. Francis squad of 1940.

Last week the Blue and Gold played an even-Stephen battle with Vineland Catholic High School. For sixty hectic, thrill-filled minutes two light and able eleven fought each other to a standstill, the ball seessawing back and forth across the 50-yard stripe. It was a stalemate, a flawlessly played game between two perfectly matched opponents.

Today the Eddytontians will travel to Merchantville to challenge the bigger and heavier high school eleven.

Harry Behn's charges will find it tougher going when they take the field to encounter the boys "over the river."

It will be a real test for the Blue and Gold to check the vaunted offensive work of the "Merchants" whose powerhouse plays are well known throughout the South Jersey Group 3 Conference.

The alert St. Francis rockettes will endeavor to upset the exports' dope.

Probable line-up:
St. Francis Merchantville
John Hagan L. E. Symanski
William Stuber L. T. Corcia
Francis Roken L. G. Dale
Joseph Hughes C. Cate
Rocco Curcio R. G. Minnick
Thomas Fox R. T. Paradise
O. Reinhardt R. E. Link
Michael Mullaney Q. Rockett
James Louthers L. H. Magee
Harry McCloskey R. H. Smith
Simon Kucharick F. B. Hlast

MORRISVILLE WINS OVER CONSHOHOCKEN ELEVEN

MORRISVILLE, Oct. 26—Buckin' Bob Pursell, great fullback, led the Morrisville High School football eleven to a hard-fought 13-6 victory over Conshohocken's Golden Bears at Robert Morris Field last night in the first night football game here in Bulldog history.

Over 1,000 fans jammed the field for the tilt to see Pursell tally both touchdowns and play a great offensive and defensive game. The Blues tallied in the second and fourth periods, while Conshohocken made its tally on a 52-yard pass play in the third period.

The entire Morrisville High student body participated in an after-game celebration which wound up in the center of town with a pep rally led by the Bulldog band.

The line-ups:
Morrisville (13) (6) Conshohocken

BRISTOL A. A. ELEVEN TO PLAY AT ANDALUSIA

The Bristol A. A. football team will invade Andalusia tomorrow to play the strong team of Joe Diamanti.

The A. A. club has been working out three nights this week with Coach Frankie Zefferies at their practice field back of Mill street, and Zefferies is looking for better blocking and passing than in the previous games.

Dugan, the former high school end, has been moved to the backfield and looks good both in running and passing.

Several new players reported this week, including Ed Barth, former Re-guard, who also looks good. The fans of Bristol who are going to travel to Andalusia on Sunday will find the playing field better known as Michell field, off of Bristol Pike, in Andalusia. The game will start at 2:30 p. m.

FALLS ALUMNI TO MEET TRENTON RAMS TOMORROW

Game Will Be Played On Island Field, Morrisville, Tomorrow Afternoon

BOTH ANXIOUS TO WIN

Trenton Eleven Composed Chiefly of Former High School Boys

Anxious to break into the win column again, the Falls Alumni gridsters will meet the Trenton Rams tomorrow afternoon on Island field, Morrisville, with the opening kick-off taking place at 2:30 o'clock.

The minions of DeRisi and Doheny have lost two straight games, both by one touchdown. North Phillies were victorious two weeks ago and last Sunday, the Trenton Eagles won out.

The Trenton Rams are just as strong, if not stronger, than the Eagles. They formerly played under the name of Trenton Guerios and only last Sunday defeated the Park Side team, 7-6. The Trenton Rams is a club composed mostly of players who formerly played on high school teams throughout New Jersey.

"Bo" Robinson who divides his time between playing with the Eagles and the Rams will be against Falls again this week. Playing with the Eagles last Sunday, it was hit run of 40 yards which put the ball in scoring position. Coaches DeRisi and Doheny drilled their boys three times this week in preparation for the contest and are almost certain that when the final whistle toots the score will be in Falls' favor.

The Falls line-up will be composed of: Duerr, Jadlocki, Wood, Neely, Mannsman, Sessa, Cappiello, Johnson, Schaffer, Bachofer, DeRisi and Wasurki.

Girl Given Verdict For Injuries Received

themselves, against Marguerite D. and Harry W. Waterman, a jury returned a verdict of $5,000 for the minor daughter-plaintiff and a verdict of $1209 for her parents, Harold and Emma Fisher.

The verdict stipulated that $209 is to be used to pay medical bills and hospital expenses and the sum of $1000 is to be used toward a plastic operation because the small girl was disfigured in a school bus and automobile accident.

A jury returned a verdict of $182.60 in favor of the plaintiff, Mollie Samph versus William Samph and Edward Samph, trading as Samph Brothers, in case involving an appeal from a Justice of the Peace.

Other interesting facts brought out were that a man or wife cannot testify against each other, that second cousins may not marry, that a wife would lose most of her husband's estate in many cases where he leaves no will.

Attorney Grim spoke near the conclusion of the morning session. His talk was followed by luncheon in the church and at the Lutheran parish house nearby.

Mrs. Walter W. Ely, New Hope, president of the Federation, had charge of the sessions. Mrs. Francis C. March, Perkaskie, delivered an address of welcome in the morning. She is president of the host club, the Perkaskie Women's Club.

Rev. W. H. Christ, pastor of St. Stephen's church, delivered the invocation, while the pledge of allegiance was led by Mrs. C. Spangler, Perkaskie. Mrs. Charles Meredith, Quakertown, had charge of the music. Members of the Quakertown Woman's Club sang at both sessions.

Reports were heard during the day from Mrs. Charles Liebig, Doylestown; Mrs. Ralph Keller, Perkaskie; Mrs. J.
